Spofford's research challenges some myths while clarifying area high school sports history

By KEVIN DOYLE
Daily News sports editor

AMESBURY — Bert Spofford doesn't think of himself as the keeper of the records — just as the guy who's taken it upon himself to set those records straight.

What began as a passing interest four years ago evolved into a full-blown passion for Spofford, 75, who has authored seven hand-written histories of high school sports in Amesbury, Newburyport and Georgetown.

The sports gospel according to Bert wasn't done for profit, but more as a tribute to "the older guys."

"I did it for the guys who won't be around much longer," said Spofford, a 1942 graduate of Cornell University and a retired U.S. Army Colonel, "so they'd know they haven't been forgotten."

Spofford, his hands gnarled from arthritis, photo-copied whatever material he could but painstakingly wrote down much of the rest. The loose-leaf books — histories of AHS football, baseball, basketball and hockey; NHS football and baseball; and GHS football — are available in the reference rooms of each town's public library or school library. Copies can be made.

"It's a souvenir for life. It's amazing how many copies of some books are making the rounds out there. There's been a lot of interest among young kids who want to see what their fathers and grandfathers did," said Spofford.

"It's gone over so big that people call me at home just to settle arguments," he added with a hearty laugh.

Spofford, who is putting the final touches on the AHS hockey history that will be his final effort, estimates he's written approximately 4,000 pages since starting.

The NHS football history is the behemoth of the bunch. At approximately 850 pages, it took nearly a year and a half to compile. It's been an invaluable research tool for the NHS Wall of Fame committee.

Spofford, whose ancestors were among the original settlers of Georgetown, did the Georgetown football book as a favor for 30-year head coach and long-time friend Jim Collamore. It was so well-received that he was presented a plaque of recognition by the Georgetown School Committee last May.

Any minute detail fans or researchers could possibly want to know — humorous anecdotes, game-by-game compilations, individual statistics, team captains and coaches — is included in each book.

Of course, there can be a problem or two with verifying the past.

"These guys and events were myths. People look at the past as sacred and immortal. Even if they're (the stories) lies, people don't want them changed," Spofford admitted.

A case in point occurred two years ago when Spofford and his research partner, the late William "Whit" Peabody, turned up ample evidence that the annual Thanksgiving Day series between Newburyport and Amesbury actually began in 1915, not the long-accepted 1891 date. That stirred up quite a furor among Clipper fans and ruffled a feather or two on the Indians' war bonnets.

Peabody, who died in July of 1989, got Spofford hooked on research.

"He moved in next door and he was one of a kind. We were different as night and day, but he was insane about sports and that's what we had in common," Spofford recalled.

"Anyway, he came over to the house one day and he said 'I love sports and I know you do to.' He had Amesbury High's football record memorized for 30 years. He reeled it off and I'll bet he didn't miss 10 scores," he said, shaking his head in wonder.

Still, it took a subtle nudge from Peabody to set Spofford off and running.

"I stopped by the library one day to see him in microfilm and bat the breeze. He said he thought I'd be pretty good at this stuff and I said it was my idea of doing nothing," Spofford said.

"One day I said 'get me some microfilm' and I started writing the stuff down. It was Amesbury baseball. I came home and had nothing to do, so I went back and did another year. And I went back the next day," he said.

And the next day, and the day after that and the day after that — until Spofford found himself immersed in research six or seven hours a day, six days a week.

Why?

"Because I think I was the only guy with the combination of experience, time, background and tenacity to do something like this," he said.

"Plus, it's a challenge. You're all by yourself in what's basically a monastery. And, when I start something, I want to do it a little better than someone else," said Spofford, a dominant collegiate and semi-pro pitcher who once struck out 68 batters in a four-game stretch in high school at Sanborn Regional.

"I guess I wanted to do something I know no one else will probably do," he said.

the region to examine microfilm in order to verify the legitimacy of a single game or two, or to clarify a player's name, untoward behavior.

Of all the obscure facts and amazing discoveries he's dredged up, Spofford has enjoyed the lighter side of his research most.

One of his favorites occurred during an 1894 game between Newburyport and the Amesbury Rugbys. With the score tied, 0-0, Amesbury was on the Newburyport three with a minute to play.

Fans rushed onto the field and, with the alleged assistance of the referee, pushed the Amesbury ballcarrier into the end zone for the only score of the game.

"There are so many things that happened that you just wouldn't believe," he said.

"Going way back in football, schools used to play teams that were on the same rail line. One year Newburyport played at Danvers and was welcomed by the band and opposing fans and everyone marched to the game. Well Newburyport won and was surrounded on the way back to the station. The players had to barricade themselves in the station until they were rescued," he explained in his homey style of storytelling.

Because of the arthritis, Spofford said he'll probably not write any more books. But, he is bowling for the 42nd consecutive year and continues to go ballroom dancing most every Saturday night.

"Some day, another guy will come along just like me and pick up where I left off," he said.

Somehow, that seems unlikely.

For Bert, baseball is a way of life

By JACK BOWES

If you were an aspiring young high school pitcher, striking out 17 batters in a baseball game certainly would be a gratifying and rewarding experience, right?

That experience certainly would encourage an individual to save the press clippings for that particular game ... right again?

Now, how about accomplishing that feat in four successive games! That amounts to 68 strikeouts. The youngster certainly could and should be proud of this achievement, for it would turn out to be a New England interscholastic record.

All of the above is true, and the holder of this record is Amesbury's own high school baseball coach, Harold "Burt" Spofford. The 64-year-old Georgetown native, well-known for his sporting prowess around the North Shore, is currently struggling to get his Indian nine ball team to the 500 mark. Although this has not been the best of seasons for Spofford, baseball has been good to the veteran mentor for over 50 years.

It all began for Burt at age 13, as he played the outfield in the Georgetown Intertown League on a team deluged with relatives. Even at that age, he could throw a ball farther than anyone on the team. The strength of that arm indicated that pitching was not far away, but it still took two years before this happened. It wasn't until he was a sophomore at the Old Berley High School in Georgetown that he actually got a chance on the mound. It was a one-inning stint and he struck out two of the three batters he faced.

People associated with the sport began to realize that he had ability, and suddenly he was given an opportunity to attend Governor Dummer Academy. However, the "acoustics" were not quite what Spofford was used to dealing with, so he transferred to Sanborn Seminary in Kingston, New Hampshire.

The aforementioned record then came to being, and Cornell University showed an interest in the tall righthander who also competed in football, as an end, and basketball, as a center. But Burt's first love was baseball and this led him to Ithaca, New York.

Far above Lake Cayuga, Burt played freshman football for the Big Red, but gave it up to concentrate on pitching. For four years he twirled for Cornell. During the off season, he waited on tables, and washed dishes, and worked for various professors in an order to help defray the cost of school.

Spofford had tremendous ability as a pitcher, but he was also an outstanding student as well. He graduated from Cornell in 1942 with a BS in Economics and Physical Education. He ranked third in his class, and was the highest ranking male in the university. Those aren't bad stats for a pitcher!

Being an ROTC college, Spofford tried to enter the program, but was deferred because of a bad knee. Upon graduation, he had to face the draft on June 1, 1942.

On June 2 he was presented an oversized uniform and sent to Fort Meade, Maryland, and assigned to the 302nd Field Artillery, 76th Infantry Division. The Army was tough, but after being transferred to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Spofford got his break. He ran into a Col. Williamson, who used to be the commandant of the ROTC at Cornell. Upon further discussion, Spofford finally got his chance at Officer's Candidate School and from there his position changed. In four years he progressed from buck private to captain. He held command positions as an embarkation chief at Hampton Roads, Virginia, and at Camp Haan, where he came in contact with Gen. George about Duke Snider, Gil Patton, Erv Palica and Bobby Brown. Also Sid Gordon and Ted Williams. Later on he ran into Eddie Popowski and Rudy York's brother, who managed a minor league team in Portsmouth, Va.

You figure a man who played the sport for over 20 years would tire of it eventually. Wrong! Spofford helped Georgetown establish its Little League and Babe Ruth League. In between that, he refereed basketball, and umpired baseball for eight years.

Beyond that, he managed the Amesbury Merchants in the Northeast League, and along with Paul Moughan, co-managed an Amesbury entry in the American Legion circuit. Spofford is also a director of the current Northeast Baseball League. And beyond that, he is in his 34th year as president of the Veterans Bowling League. And that is not a shabby statistic either.

For 30 years, Spofford made his living as a salesman, 21 of which were spent with Haverhill Hardware. The remaining nine were with Finberg Supply.

The bad knee that plagued Bert was corrected thanks to Dr. John Musser. Spofford has an artificial knee that he says functions very well. And it doesn't stop him from tripping the light fantastic, when in Let's go a little further. How was told he might not to do any of this type again.

"The hardest thing in the world is to be yourself," reiterates Spofford to his players, and it is a true statement. It might come hard for the players, but it comes easy for their coach.

If we had a youngster interested in playing baseball, and Burt Spofford was the manager, we'd drive him to the park instead of making him walk!

Preface

This book has been prepared by the author in recognition of the oncoming 100th Anniversary of NHS Football (1892 - 1991). This writer also honors the Clippers outstanding football program as 1 of the oldest in the state.

Npt. football has been blessed over the years with a sports-minded community, a cooperative school administration and excellent coaching staffs.

Not only have I been a long time NHS fan but have known and competed against many of the Clippers outstanding athletes in sports since 1932.

Recording Sports History has been 1 way for me to pay back some of the rewards attained in my lifetime as a result of Sports.

Tribute to William "Whit" Peabody

This is to acknowledge his work in researching the early years of this book, 1892 - 1899, and making photostatic copies of newspaper reports.

Bill, a retired Marblehead teacher and Amesbury native, was my close friend, neighbor and fellow sports historian. Bill researched only as far as 1899 (8 years) when he became ill. I took over the project when he eventually passed away in late Summer 1989.

Foreword

This in depth study of material necessary to produce the "History of NHS Football 1892 - 1989" involved over a year's work. It required research of nearly 100 years of microfilm of the Mpt. News, examining year books, town reports and conversations with living members of the various teams.

Over the years NHS Football has been played at several local fields:-

- 1892 - YMCA Athletic Park - Cor. State & Parker Sts.
- 1897 - North End Grounds - Moseley Ave.
- 1897 - Fair Grounds - Storey Ave.
- 1904 - South End Grds. - Blum Island Turnpike - near Sportsman's Lodge. (Sold in 1909)
- 1909 - Used Fair Grounds again.
- 1912 - 1936 NAC Grds. - South End Stadium.
- 1937 - 1938 WW Memorial Stadium under construction - all games played away except 1937 Thanksgiving Day game with Amesbury played at Central Park (now Cushman Park). A makeshift field was set up.
- 1939 - Present -

WW Memorial Stadium christened Sept. 16, 1939 although still under construction.

NHS Football actually involves 3 different eras -

1. 1892 - 1933 Independent and EIAA Era,
2. 1934 - 1973 Northeast Conference Era
3. 1974 - 1989 Cape Ann League Era

1892 - 1932
Independent Era

The first officially recognized NHS football team began play in 1892. The late sports historian, Wm. "Whit" Beabody, photostatted Npt. News game reports from 1892 - 1899. At this point Mrs. Beabody became ill from cancer and eventually passed away in the late Summer of 1989.

The author, Bert Spofford, took over the project at the year 1900.

Early NHS football was marked by poor playing fields, inadequate uniforms and equipment, poor officials, volunteer coaching and unruly crowds.

Several students never finished high school - most had to work in mill, factory or on the farm to help support the family. Very seldom were all the players present at practice sessions.

Early coaching was usually by volunteers and often the Capt. were in charge. The coaching situation changed nearly every year. It wasn't until 1908 that NHS had its first paid coach (Dana Sommes) who was paid by public subscription. Coach Leslie Orcutt, 1918 - 1921, was the first coach to last more than 2 years in those early days.

Transportation from 1892 to World War I was by train so most games were scheduled with towns and cities on railroad lines. Later came the jitneys, electric cars and eventually the automobile and bus.

Early play was more like the game of Rugby. The "push play" was the popular play - a player was given the ball and the rest of the team surrounded him and pushed him towards the goal. Eventually came the "skin tackle play", "criss cross", "tackle back", "double pass", the famous "wing shift" of Carlisle Indian fame. The forward pass came into play

1892 - 1932

Play was very rough and often dirty. The crowds were unruly, boisterous, rabid, prejudiced - often interfered with play and on occasion attacked the officials.

Hangs of rowdies accompanied the teams and the visiting teams were often pelted with eggs, fruit, vegetables, rocks or any object they could lay their hands on.

After WW I conditions began to improve. More rules were established, officials were better trained, more police protection was available, better playing fields existed, equipment improved, better transportation - electric cars, autos and busses became available. Coaching became a paid profession and schoolboy athletics were now being regulated and supervised on both the state and local level. Leagues were formed at different levels of competition taking into consideration size of school, geographical location and natural rivalries.

In early years NHS played Independent Football except the period 1897 - 1903 when they participated in the EIAA (Essex Interacholastic Athletic Assn.). The Independent Era lasted until 1934 when NHS entered the Northeastern Conference (NEC).

Northeastern Conference Era

1934 - 1972

NHS joined the Northeastern Conf. (NEC) in 1934 and remained a member until 1973 when they joined the CAL where they remain today.

The schools in the NEC had grown too large for Npt. The CAL schools were much more comparable in enrollment and less travel was involved.

During their tenure in the NEC NHS won .444 % of their Conference games. (Won 68 Lost 85 and Tied 13)

Cape Ann League Era

1973 - 1989

NHS has enjoyed far more success in football since joining the CAL.

They have won .686 % of their CAL games compared with an NEC winning % of .444.

Some fine rivalries have developed in the league with Npt. - namely Triton, Amesbury, Centucket and No. Andover.

100 Years of NHS Football

1892 - 1991

NHS Football has enjoyed a long and honored past. Many fine teams have been produced and numerous outstanding players developed. Many have gone on to college and have had starry careers at that level.

Other NHS athletes have been successful in all walks of life - lawyers, doctors, mayors, coaches, school superintendents, principals & teachers, pro football players, industrial execs, etc. The training and experiences they obtained on the playing field had much to do with attaining their goals.

As we approach the 100th Anniversary of NHS Football may we continue in the future to foster the ideals of competitiveness, good sportsmanship and the lessons learned from Victory and Defeat.

Two decades

Stehlin resigns as Newburyport football coach

By KEVIN DOYLE
Daily News sports editor

11/30/83

NEWBURYPORT — There exists that precise time frame in every individual's life when it is "right" to take a specific course of action.

That time is now for Jim Stehlin, who resigned yesterday as Newburyport High's varsity football coach.

Stehlin, 51, completed his 20th season as Newburyport coach Thanksgiving morning with a 48-8 win against Amesbury. He had served as head football coach longer than anyone in the school's history.

However, Stehlin will remain as the high school athletic director, a position he has held for the past decade.

The decision to leave coaching was entirely personal and was not influenced by outside factors, Stehlin said.

"The decision was really reached earlier this year. I went into this season with the idea this would be my final year. I discussed it with my family before the season and I told the staff during the year," Stehlin said.

"It's a decision reached with great difficulty. It's emotional, a hard thing to do because it's been so much a part of my life. But, no outside offers of any kind had anything to do with it. I could never coach at any other high school. And there was nothing involving collegiate offers."

Through the years, Stehlin has been his own toughest critic. That penchant played something more than a minor role in his decision.

"At this point of my life I'm really concerned whether or not I could continue at this pace. I expect a certain caliber of performance from myself," he said.

"During the season it's a seven-day-a-week job and even more than that. I wouldn't want to get caught in a situation where I'd be coaching because that's what I've been doing all my life. I wouldn't want to be sitting on the job."

Reaction from colleagues, other coaches and school officials has been unanimous in the praise of the veteran coach.

Superintendent of Schools Francis Bresnahan summed it up yesterday:

"Obviously, I'm very sad we've received Jim's resignation, though I understand fully his reasons. For 20 years this man has absolutely personified the whole concept of excellence as both a coach and a teacher of young men."

"There's absolutely no way we're going to be able to replace that sort of excellence. What he has done for the young men of this city is beyond calculation."

A record to look back on

When Stehlin arrived at Newburyport in 1964, he inherited a program that had struggled under three coaches since Walter Sheridan's departure in 1957.

It's a decision reached with great difficulty. It's emotional, a hard thing to do, because it's been so much a part of my life.

After 194 games, memories tend to blur together. But there were distinctly unforgettable moments.

"I think in 1965, when we snapped the (20-plus year losing) streak against Gloucester, we gave a sign of turning the corner. That was a great awakening and we showed we'd come of age the next week when we beat Winthrop. We realized we could be winners," Stehlin reflected.

"In 1968, we had a full house (10,000-plus fans jammed World War Memorial Stadium) when we beat Swampscott for the title. In 1974 we beat Amesbury when they were undefeated to share the title and our 1975 Super Bowl win against Wayland and 1977 over-time win against Ipswich were great thrills. This year's wins against Ipswich and Lynnfield were two of the most exciting we've ever had," he said.

Similarly, the coaching confrontations were immensely fulfilling. Stehlin lists games against former Northeast Conference foes Stan Bondevitch (Swampscott), George Moriarty (Lynn Classical), John Furey (Gloucester) and Noel Reebenacker (Marblehead), along with CAL opponents Dan Rorke (North Andover), Doug Wood (Amesbury), Jack Welch (Ipswich) and Ron Corcoran (Triton) as special challenges.

"There are a lot of people you just know you have to coach well against if you're going to be successful," he said. "They foster good programs."

"Stan's that way in Swampscott and Dan turned the program around in North Andover. Jack's been competitive in Ipswich for years and Ron's done a job at Triton."

"I think Doug and I developed a very close relationship, both from a competition and understanding situation, given the rivalry."

Stehlin learned from the best

Stehlin has been involved in football for 37 years, or "since I was 14 years old, in junior high."

His no-nonsense, yet subtly innovative, coaching style is a byproduct of his having played under three coaching masters.

Stehlin, a quarterback, began his college career at Georgetown under Bob Margarita. He transferred to Brandeis when the Hoyas dropped the sport and found himself under the tutelage of former Michigan All-American and NFL Hall of Famer Ben Freedman. After a brief professional fling in Canada, Stehlin latched on as an assistant coach in Natick (1958-64) under the legendary Dan Bennett.

"I picked up a lot of innovative ideas on the passing game from Benny Freedman," Stehlin said. "He gave me the opportunity to become a Little All-American and I'll always appreciate that."

"At Natick, I had an unbelievable opportunity to really find out how to coach high school football. Dan Bennett was an organizer, committed to basic fundamentals. I wasn't at the time. I learned you had to play defense and to control the ball to win in high school," said Stehlin, who coached current NHS staffers Paul Kolman and Bill Pettingell at Natick.

The Stehlin philosophy

There is no denying Stehlin has lent class and dignity to Newburyport football in particular and the athletic program as a whole. Building self-pride and earning opponents' respect became cherished goals in the early years.

"There's a certain thing about being around winners. You sense a positive atmosphere and commitment and it rubs off. You know that whatever is there that you're going after is attainable — if you're willing," he reasoned yesterday morning in his office, dominated by Newburyport football memorabilia.

"It's also very important that you don't cheat people. You must make them understand that if they give their best they can be successful in football. You have to create a sense of importance, but you have to make them realize it's only a part of their lives, that there are so many other contributions they can make."

"I love when former players transfer their drives and instincts to other areas and are successful. I get great satisfaction out of that."

The day-to-day contact with players, sharing their pain and despair, mistakes and successes — observing the maturation process — will be what Stehlin said he will miss the most.

It will not be the build-up before a game, a nerve-racking, nauseating endeavor for many.

"I won't miss the pre-game at all — that's awful," he said with a chuckle.

"In the long run, I think you miss knowing how important you were to those players, the place you played in their life. The association with the players is the greatest gift in coaching."

"All of my teams have a special attachment, from the undefeated teams on down. Some were more fortunate than others in terms of talent and circumstances."

"The winless (1971) team had to endure an abnormal situation in that the school was split in half (to form Triton). You just can't do that. We couldn't compete in the Northeast Conference and it was unfortunate for that group of kids."

Those who played for the coach is litanous. Stehlin recalls fondly that he had the opportunity to coach a number of brothers and cousins; he considers it a privilege he got the chance to coach his son, Kevin, on a championship squad and on the night of his 100th win in 1980.

Some were all-scholastics. Many were all-stars. The majority played because they enjoyed the game. All, in some form, were touched by this man.

And for the future?

Jim Stehlin's not sure how he'll react when double sessions roll around in August. He is sure that he'll enjoy those leisurely Friday nights and Saturday afternoons with his family.

And he'll be around, eager to continue on as athletic director or in any other capacity the School Department sees fit.

He fervently hopes his successor isn't sliced, diced and analyzed under a microscope.

"I don't want whoever takes the job to feel that they have to do something because that's the way Jim Stehlin did it," he said. "They have to do it their way. What I do hope is that the coach that comes in can keep the tradition."

games (13).

"I was talking with Walter Sheridan about the green jersey incident recently. But, the memories tend to run together after awhile and it gets hard to pick one out over another," said Bresnahan, who began his involvements with NHS football as a first-year teacher and faculty manager in 1950.

"It was a job no one wanted. I was fortunate to get it and I've witnessed many great things in the past 40 years," he said.

Bresnahan's family has deep NHS football roots.

Eldest son Mike set the school single-season scoring record in 1975 and is second on the career list. Son Steve was captain in 1978 and son Kevin played two varsity seasons. Daughters MaryAnn and Ellen were cheerleaders. Son-in-law Mike Foley - also involved in Colgate University's 100th year of football as its head coach - captained the 1973 NHS squad; son-in-law Kevin Sullivan was an All-Scholastic quarterback on the 1975 Super Bowl championship team; and son-in-law Brian Clancy was a member of the '75 squad as well.

"My family enjoyed that kind of involvement - many, many happy hours were spent with football," ing schmatzy, I think we've had the kind of people coaching our kids the city can be proud of. It's hard to pick someone out who wasn't a good influence."

Stehlin, whose son Kevin was quarterback of the 1980 championship team, said his most enduring memories are of community support and the crowds that used to pack the stadium.

"I'm sitting here talking in my office, looking up at a picture of the '66 game against Swampscott," Stehlin said, referring to the Clippers' title-clinching win in front of more than 10,000 fans. "I came here at a time when the team was down, but I was just amazed at the support of the school and the community and how much concern and interest there was in the team."

"By the same token, it's also the thing that's disappointed me most in the last few years. There's not the community identity there once was with the team. I can remember when 50 people used to come to watch practice, but those days probably won't come back," he said.

While acknowledging diminishing interest among fans, the current staff preaches the old ways to its team.

"Football gave me great self-what we're stressing - we're trying to bring back the tradition and the work ethic and the kids seem to be responding," Simmons said.

"When I came back as a coach, I started to get the younger brothers and I felt the tradition. Family history is very big in NHS football. I got it from my dad and one of the reasons why I'm still coaching is that now my younger ones are coming up. That's fun," said Sullivan. His son Scott is a freshman quarterback and son Sean is a sixth-grade youth league quarterback.

The question of the actual starting date is minor to Bresnahan. While it can be established that Newburyport fielded a team in the Interstate Football League in 1892, Bresnahan said high school student handbooks as far back as the 1930s list 1891 as the inaugural season.

"We've used 1891 as far back as I can recall. Organization and school committee sponsorship didn't happen back then. There may be no actual documentation, but there's been a tradition (of using 1891) that's existed for a long time," he said.

Ah, tradition.

MR. LEONARD KNOX

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

On behalf of the entire student body, The Class of 1960 wishes to thank Coach Buddy Knox for his invaluable service to the people of Newburyport. Through his efforts, the students at Newburyport High School have learned the true meaning of sportsmanship. We wish him the best of luck in his new position as Athletic Director of the Newburyport Schools.

MR. WALTER SHERIDAN

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

We, the En-Aitch-Ess staff of 1957, wish to express our appreciation to Mr. Walter Sheridan for the fine job he has done here at Newburyport High School. As a coach he has proven himself to be one of the finest. Here at N.H.S. he has made sports not just games; but builders of the mind and body. He has taught us the true meaning of victory and defeat. He has shown us what sportsmanship really is.

We at Newburyport High shall miss the sincerity and earnest efforts of Mr. Sheridan, and we wish him success in his new position.

Good Luck!

Stehlin inducted into Brandeis Hall of Fame

March 27, 1993

By JOHN FESTA
Daily News staff

WALTHAM — There's been a lot of water over the dam since Jim Stehlin departed post-war Allentown, Pa. 40 years ago in pursuit of his childhood dream of quarterbacking the Georgetown University football team.

That dream may have been cut short when the Hoyas, despite their rich tradition, made the decision to drop football after Stehlin's freshman year. That also signaled the beginning of a long and accomplished career for Stehlin. Courted by Benny Friedman, the legendary coach and former Michigan All-American quarterback, Stehlin made the fateful decision to transfer to the fledgling Brandeis University.

The wisdom of that decision was confirmed Saturday night. Stehlin, the long-time Newburyport High football coach and Athletic Di-dad happy."

Also inducted were Rudy Fin-derson (basketball, '58), Sid Gold-fader (football, basketball, baseball, '54) and Billy McKenna (football, baseball, '55) as well as Arel "Cookie" Schurgin Shapiro (baseball, '74), Mike Fahey (basketball, '75), Cleveland Lewis (soccer, '76), Mark Beeman (cross-country, '85) and the late Jim McCully (soccer, '86).

Honored with a Distinguished Service Award was NBC-TV analyst and Boston Globe columnist Bud Collins, the Brandeis tennis coach for five years in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

FILE PHOTO
Jim Stehlin was inducted into the Hall of Fame at Brandeis University

B titles and two Div. III Super Bowl crowns in 20 years. He also was head baseball coach from 1965-69. He retired from coaching after the 1983 football season, but remains Athletic Director.

Stehlin thanked his family present, which included his wife Beverly, his sister Kitty from Allentown and his brother Jack from Washington, D.C. He also expressed his gratitude to the large contingent of Newburyport coaches, friends and former players in attendance, including a large group from his 1966 state Class B championship squad.

In closing, Stehlin recalled some words spoken by his father before he was leaving for his freshman year at Georgetown.

"I'm not so concerned about your becoming a great athlete," he said. "What I am concerned about is your becoming a great person."

"I always remembered that," said Stehlin. "I hope I made my Kaye, who had risen at 4:30 that morning to watch a surgeon operate at Boston City Hospital, gave some advice that Stehlin took to heart.

"All my life I wanted to be a great surgeon. I could never do that. I never had the education," said Kaye. "I have a great life now. I've reached fame and fortune. That's something I've always wanted to do."

"What I'm trying to tell you is this," Kaye added. "I don't know what you're going to be when you leave here, but do something that you want to do, like to do and that you're happy with for the rest of your life."

"I've spent 35 years as a teacher and coach and a director of athletics," said Stehlin. "It's been a wonderful life, a very rich life. I appreciated it so much."

After graduation, Stehlin played pro football for one year in Canada before returning to Massachusetts as an assistant coach in Natick. He came to Newburyport in 1964 and revived the school's sagging football program, winning eight league championships, two Class rector, and nine other former Judges were inducted as charter members of Brandeis University's Athletic Hall of Fame at the school's Gosman Sports and Convocation Center.

The crowd of approximately 500 heard a warm and moving introduction of Stehlin by his son Kevin, who outlined his father's Allentown roots and his path to Brandeis, where he led the nation in total offense in 1955 and was chosen Little All-American in 1956.

Kevin noted that Friedman, who was inducted posthumously, said of his father, "He's the best player I ever coached, a great triple-threat man."

The younger Stehlin called quarterbacking one of his dad's eight championship teams in 1980 and playing in his 100th career win highlights in his life.

"He was, and is, an inspiration to all of us who played for him," said Kevin. "He always taught us to be classy and act like gentlemen. Certainly he was an example of this."

"I'm adopted and my two sisters are. How lucky we are to be adopted by this man," said Kevin, his voice cracking.

During his acceptance speech, Stehlin recalled the early days at Brandeis.

"The people I played with here I really appreciated," remarked Stehlin, who was the final inductee. "We had a special bond, a special feeling. We were all happy to be here. Everything was so new. It was such a challenge. There were some great athletes here that could have played anywhere."

Stehlin referred to a weekly seminar during his senior year that brought in top individuals from the business, political and entertainment worlds to speak to the students. One of those was entertainer Danny Kaye, who was at the height of his popularity.

Worked more than 40 years at Newburyport's schools

NEWBURYPORT — Superintendent of Schools Francis T. Bresnahan, who had a lifelong relationship with education in the city of Newburyport, died early yesterday morning after a two-year battle with cancer. He was 67.

A funeral mass is scheduled for tomorrow. Newburyport schools will be closed for the day and flags at all city buildings will be flown at half staff for 30 days.

To the end Mr. Bresnahan was reluctant to leave behind the school system where he had worked for more than 40 years.

Shortly before school started he made what would be his last appearance at the school, checking to make sure the system was ready for the first day. He told school staffers he would be back soon.

Assistant Superintendent Eugene Case called Mr. Bresnahan's death "a tremendous loss" to the community.

School Committee member Norman Doyle, who worked with Bresnahan longer than most other people in the city, called Mr. Bresnahan "the best superintendent I've ever worked with."

Although many people knew of Mr. Bresnahan's illness, most were still shocked and saddened by his death. (See related story.)

Francis Bresnahan was born in Newburyport on May 16, 1926, the son of Thomas L. and Catharine (Donahue) Bresnahan. He grew up in Newburyport and attended the city's schools, graduating from Newburyport High School in 1943.

Mr. Bresnahan joined the faculty at Newburyport High School in 1949 as an English and history teacher.

Career chronology

Following is a chronology of Francis Bresnahan's career in the Newburyport schools.

1943: Graduates from Newburyport High School.

1947: Graduates from Tufts University.

1949: Joins faculty of Newburyport High School as English and history teacher. Also serves as faculty manager of athletics and adviser to the school newspaper.

1957: Named principal of the Kelley School.

1958: Serves less than a year as assistant principal of the new Pentucket Regional High School in West Newbury, returning that year to take a job as principal of Newburyport High School.

1966: Becomes assistant superintendent, overseeing revisions to elementary school curriculum and the creation of one of the nation's first middle schools.

1970: Named superintendent.

1971: Granted life tenure.

1975: Receives first of two contracts with the city.

1991: Receives new contract; hospitalized for cancer.

1992: Bresnahan announces plans to retire in December 1993.

Legacy of Francis Bresnahan

It is being said among those who knew Francis T. Bresnahan, who died early Sunday morning, that it is a shame he did not live to enjoy his retirement after so many years as superintendent of Newburyport's schools.

But in a larger sense, his retirement would have been a continuation of his life, because he was not the kind of man who could have simply walked away from all that had been meaningful in a long and fruitful career to go fishing or to play golf.

Bresnahan's interests were keen and broad. And he pursued them with zeal without being a bore. He was as complete a professional educator as he was a warm and loving human being.

EDITORIAL The Daily News

He could be acerbic and quick to temper, and often was when obliged to suffer what he considered to be injustice, hypocrisy or intrusive ignorance. But he was just as quick to recast his energies in positive ways.

Fate placed him in a position of educational power at a time of major transitions in public education, and he was quick to seize opportunities to be innovative.

Newburyport has had a long line of strong superintendents, each with singular strengths. He combined the best of the lot of them, and added dimensions of his own.

A gifted teacher, he knew well the nature of classroom frustration and the corrosion that can bring. He did not forget the teacher's lot when he became superintendent.

A skilled administrator, he was able to introduce new concepts without losing sight of the importance of staple demands.

It did not take long before his fellow professionals began to take note. Many of them came from other states, for example, to study what Newburyport had done with its middle school program, and went away to emulate it.

And when the school system of Lynn fell into disarray, Bresnahan was asked to take on the chore of recasting it. He declined, but said he would serve with others to bring about the needed changes, and he did.

Such events, however, sound like so much administrative carpentry, and while it grades the professional effort, it does little to explain the man.

For that, one has to turn to the private Francis Bresnahan, a man of scholarly bent, of considerable culture, as quick to laugh as to scoff, a man blessed with impressive common sense.

He loved his family above all else on this earth. But his emotion was nearly as warm for his fellow man. He enjoyed the company of others with a warmth born of a shared sense of living.

He did not abide such innovations as "political correctness" with grace. He believed in seeing things as they were and in expressing himself without equivocation.

He reminded us that some things were virtuous and some were without virtue. He believed deeply in right and wrong. Above all else, he believed in teaching individual responsibility for one's actions.

Yesterday's headline, while factually accurate, was not totally correct. "Francis Bresnahan dies," it read.

However, it did not take into account the fruits of his efforts that live on in the lives of the thousands of men and women who benefited from his teaching and administration.

It is only partially true for those of his close friends and acquaintances who were enriched by his candor and intelligence.

And it is not true at all for his wife, Kay, their children and their grandchildren, who will carry his love and his counsel with them forever.

Committed to tradition

Newburyport AD Stehlin leaves 30 years of excellence behind

By KEVIN DOYLE
Daily News Sports Editor

When Jim Stehlin leaves his basement office in the "new wing" today, he will close the door on 30 years as a teacher, coach and Athletic Director at Newburyport High School.

Stehlin, who celebrated his 62nd birthday Tuesday, spent his career committed to preserving the school's rich tradition and restoring pride to its athletic program.

He is the last of a decidedly pro-athletic administration that included most of the school committee as well as the late Superintendent Francis T. Bresnhahn and retired assistant superintendents Leonard "Buddy" Knox and Joe Donnelly.

"Working with that administration was probably one of the things I most appreciated. When you went to people like that, they helped," he said.

"It's been a great trip, but I just feel it's time to move on."

A U.S. Army veteran and former Little All-American quarterback at Brandeis University, the Allentown, Pa. native came to Newburyport in 1964 as a history teacher and head football and baseball coach after six years at Natick High. He became Athletic Director in 1970.

He didn't realize then it would be a lifetime position. He leaves an impressive legacy.

Following a 1-7-1 record in his first season as football coach, Stehlin's teams won back-to-back Northeastern Conference titles in 1965 and 1966 and the undefeated '66 squad was crowned Class B champion.

When Newburyport joined the Cape Ann League in 1973, the Clippers won six league crowns and consecutive EMass. Div. III Super Bowl titles (1975 and '76) Stehlin, page B3

STEHLIN: Retires after 30 memorable years

under Stehlin. He coached three undefeated teams and compiled a 126-64-3 record before retiring as a coach following the 1983 season.

"I think if I hadn't been successful (coaching) early, it wouldn't have been (a lifetime position). I was just so impressed when I got here with the school and stadium. I knew they had a rich tradition and were committed to a strong program and knew this was where I wanted to be," Stehlin said.

"I had some opportunities to move, but I thought it was more important when you're raising a family not to be jumping around all over the country. I saw friends do that and it didn't work out," he said. "Newburyport has been great for me and my family. We have a very nice home and love the community."

Stehlin credits much of his success to the support and understanding of his family — wife Beverly, son Kevin and daughters Kelley and Kara.

"Family is the most important thing my life. Bev has done so much for me in so many different ways. As the Hematology Supervisor at the hospital she's probably more successful in her field than I ever was but I was more in the public view. She's pulled all of these things together," he said.

In what he called a "natural progression," Stehlin took over as Athletic Director when Knox became Assistant Superintendent.

"The opportunity was there after six or seven years and it worked out well. I don't know how much longer coaches will be allowed to do it. The job is changing here and in other places, becoming more administrative," he said.

Compared to coaching, where success is quantifiable and the rewards tangible, the AD's task is often thankless.

"I especially enjoyed the coaching — it was wonderful. The AD's job is just so involved and time-consuming. Half the time you can't even enjoy the games because there is so much to be done. You're out four nights during the winter. There's just a lot more to it than people think," said Stehlin, who played one season in the Canadian Football League and is a member of both the NHS Wall of Fame and the Brandeis Hall of Fame.

"There are very few thank-yous or measurable positive things. When someone comes to you in this job, they usually have a problem. I'll be very honest — this was not that enjoyable the last few years. There was no comparison to coaching," he said.

Stehlin faced a major crisis almost immediately when the decision was made that Newburyport, a charter member of the Northeastern Conference in the 1930s, would shift to the Cape Ann League.

Predictably, a firestorm of opposition flared up among old-timers who viewed the NEC as their league.

Stehlin believes the right choice was made.

"It was a tough move from the standpoint of those (NEC) rivalries. The older people still talk about them. But, I don't think we had much choice for two reasons. First, Amesbury made the move before us and when your rival is in a different league, the rivalry loses something. And, in terms of school size and location, we almost had to do it," he said.

With Stehlin working closely with a supportive administration, the number of sports — particularly for girls — increased and facilities were added.

Among programs added under Stehlin were soccer (boys and girls), tennis (boys and girls), girls track, boys golf and boys ice hockey. The Fuller Field complex on Low Street houses a state of the art track as well as fields for soccer and field hockey.

The advent of Prop 2 1/2 in the early 1980s, shrinking budgets and the institution of users fees have transformed the position into something more akin to that of a fundraiser.

"There is a lot more paperwork now. I also think people now are a lot more demanding and a lot more critical. You have to handle more problems behind the scenes. I think a definite attitude has grown from the users fees," he said.

Stehlin commended The Boosters Club for its unwavering support, noting "they supply almost all of our uniforms now."

Whatever headaches existed were balanced by a group of dedicated, hard-working coaches and relationships Stehlin formed with fellow ADs.

"We have coaches who have stayed in our program for long periods, through thick and thin, who have worked extremely hard. You have to get the people who can do the job, then get them what they need to do it. And, when they're going through criticism, you have to be able to work that out with them," he said.

"The ADs in the Cape Ann League have been a real good group. Doug Wood and I, considering the rivalry (with Amesbury), are very close friends. I'll miss him quite a bit. Frankly, we smoothed out a lot of trouble that could have come up with this rivalry. I'll miss guys like Ron Corcoran (of Triton) and Dick Baker (the CAL Secretary)," said Stehlin, who is being joined in retirement this year by veteran Lynnfield AD Bob McLeod.

Stehlin's agenda will remain full. He is a member of the NHS Wall of Fame Committee, co-chairman of the Brandeis Hall of Fame Committee, president-elect of the the EMass. Chapter of the Football Foundation and Hall of Fame and a member of the Gridiron Club. He will continue to run a summer football camp with Wood.

"I've been gifted to spend my life in great communities such as Natick and Newburyport. I'm just going to step back and enjoy it for awhile," he said.

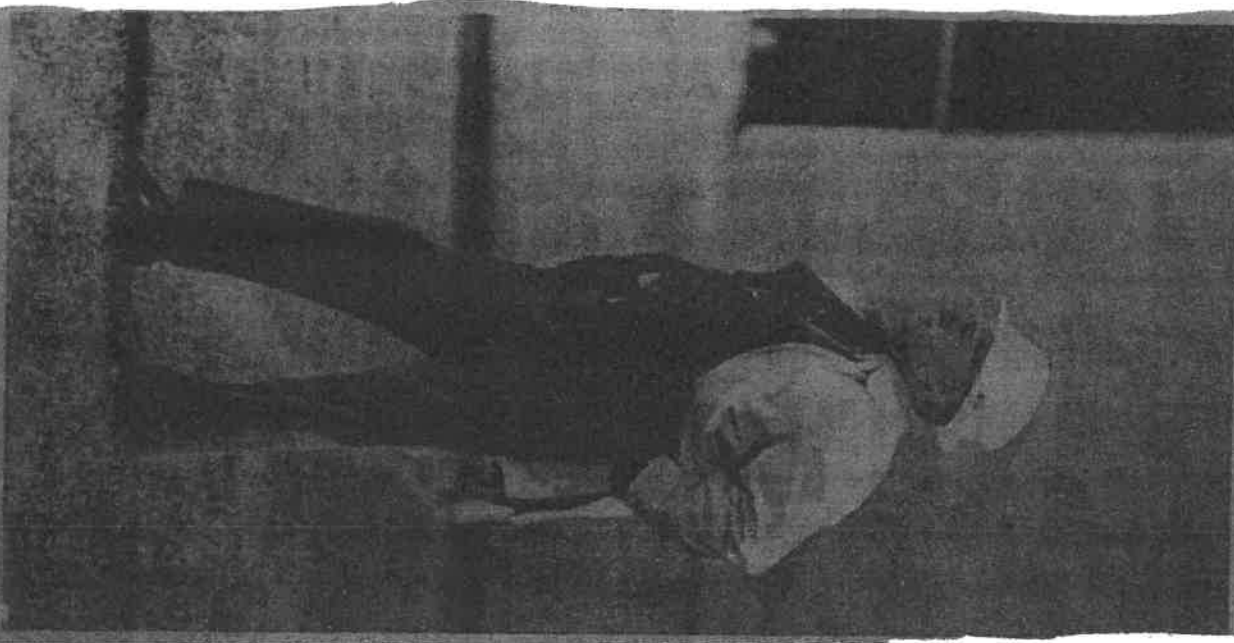

"It will be nice to go to a game and not have someone ask me where the umpires are or why the scoreboard clock isn't working," he said with a laugh.

A NEWBURYPORT HIGH football game would not be the same without the familiar faces of John Stone and

Dr. Edward Dervan on the sidelines.

NEWBURYPORT — Dr. Edward Dervan, 80, wasn't just any old doctor. He was the kind of doctor people waited hours to see just because they wanted to.

Dervan, who died on Wednesday, was a doctor in the city for 37 years, running a private practice out of his former High Street home, until he retired in 1987.

Dervan didn't require appointments, spent hours talking to patients, made house calls at any hour, and let a plate of cookies pay a patient's medical bills.

Over the years, he delivered more than 2,800 babies and serviced many Newburyport families. He also worked as the Newburyport High School football team's physician for 30 years and was honored with induction to the NHS Wall of Fame.

"He was a wonderful man to work for. He was filled with compassion," said Phyllis Packer, his former receptionist of 20 years. "If you were willing to wait your turn, he'd be willing to see you. And, when you got in his office, he'd sit there and talk to you."

She said it didn't matter how many people were in the waiting room, he'd take the time to sit and talk to each person.

Packer said Dervan would say, "If you listen long enough the patient will tell you the diagnosis."

Dervan was a unique doctor compared to the medical world today. Dervan's son Edward Jr. said his father referred to the period after World War II, when he began practicing, as the "golden years" of medicine.

He never required an appointment; instead, Dervan held open office hours six days a week and dealt with patients on a first-come, first-served basis.

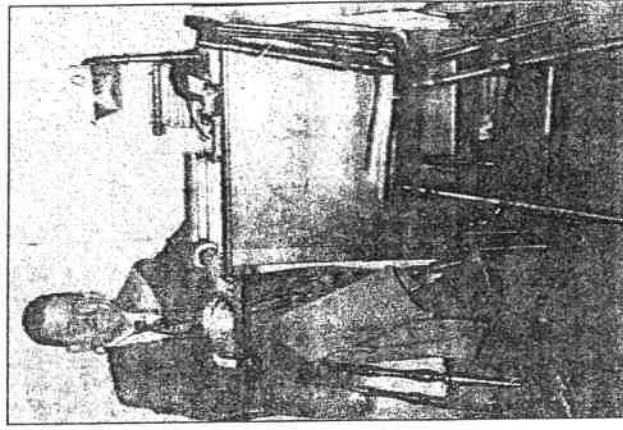

Packer said every day Dervan would start out going to the hospital, make house visits, then come to his home office where he'd spend the rest of the day with patients.

Edward Jr. remembers his father working in the office with patients until everyone was seen.

"The waiting room was always full," Edward recalled. "There was never an appointment ... if he had to keep going until midnight he would."

Dervan has six children, three sons and three daughters, all of whom had the liberty of watching their father practice in their home.

Daughter Keineth Webber said she remembers the police coming into the home one night with flashlights trying to wake him up to come to the hospital.

"We never locked the house," Webber said. "They'd come in saying, 'Dr. Dervan ... Dr. Dervan.'" Webber said her father was really one of the last doctors who made house visits and used a barter system.

"If people didn't have any money, patients would give him a plate of cookies or brownies," Webber said.

Edward said he remembers getting a bag of lobsters one time.

And, the family dog, a Springer spaniel, was given to the Dervans in lieu of a patient's bill.

Dervan's bartering surpassed even his friends.

Jim Stehlin, former NHS football coach and athletic director, said once when he was sick, Dervan spent 45 minutes on the check-up. Afterward Stehlin asked Dervan what he owed him for the visit. Dervan told him that he couldn't charge anything.

"He said, 'You're my buddy and the coach,'" Stehlin said.

Friends and family say Dervan's warmth and great smile made him such a popular guy.

"He had a soft way of talking," Stehlin said.

Although Dervan was often mild and soft-spoken, Webber said the only time he ever got mad was when she and her siblings were being too noisy during his office hours.

"Once in a while, he'd run out of the office and we'd be in back room fighting," Webber laughed. "He'd say, 'I can hear you through one, two, three, four walls,' holding up his fingers counting. He'd be mad. He ruled the roost with an iron fist, but never struck any of us. He was very quiet and calm, unless we disturbed his office hours."

Dervan, an avid football fan, even managed to take his love of medicine to the field, where he worked as the NHS football team physician for 30 years at no cost.

Norman Doyle, a former Newburyport School Committee member for 40 years, remembers asking Dervan to be the team physician for the NHS football team.

"He said, 'Sure,'" Doyle said. "He went to all the games anyway."

Doyle said he did the job for free and was always the first person to get out on the field whenever there was an injury.

A well-known and well-liked man in the community, people often looked to Dervan as a leader.

Edward said when there were out-of-town football games, Dervan would travel to games, often with a trail of 15 cars following him.

"People didn't know where they were going," Edward said. "So, they saw Dr. Dervan and figured — there goes Dr. Dervan. He knows where he's going."

Edward said little did they know that his father didn't know where the field was, even though they'd all eventually get there.

"He was just a helluva guy," Doyle said. "He was very down-to-earth. When he came to talk to you, he'd sit down next to you, and you'd go on to have a nice conversation. He was a personable guy."
